 Wednesday found Blaine Denlow out on the wide veranda painting rocks and having good conversations with Deward's granddaughter. Two of The General's fair daughters joined two cousins there while two Champion grandsons waited and waited to go to the creek. They all agreed it was a beautiful day.
 The next day was Juneteenth, a National Holiday, commemorating the end of slavery. Tyler Clark enjoyed his birthday on the 20th, which was also the day 25,000 people gathered at Stonehenge in Wiltshire, England, where people have been making astronomical observations since 2,500 BC. They watched the sunrise peeking through the stones and greeted it with drumming and chanting, cheering and dancing.

 June 21 is known as National Indigenous Peoples' Day. The birthdays of Champion Linda Krider Watts and Felix the Farmer's Aunt Sierra fell on that day while bombs fell far away to the surprise and concern of most of the world. Senator Elisabeth Warren and local historian Cinita Brown have birthdays on the 22nd. Skyline eighth grader Kash Hurt celebrates on the 24th. Sherry Bennett sings, "There's five pounds of possum in my headlights tonight." She shares her birthday on the 25th with Eric Blair, born in 1903. He is known as George Orwell, and many people wish his work was fiction. Esther Wrinkles is well remembered in Champion where she was born and raised. She wrote items for the papers for 50 years. Her birthday was on June 28. We also remember Champion Eva Powell on the 29th. She taught a good lesson about dogs chasing cars. She said to slow way down so they lose interest.

 If you are an American, your family is here because they were either Native American, slave, refugee or immigrant. Some of us are a combination of those things and all of us are fortunate. Democracy is the notion of Champions—Looking on the bright side!
