OPINION EDITORIAL - AMERICA IS HUNGRY FOR REVIVAL

America is hungry for revival. This past week, we saw the embers of long-ago values spark again and ignite our nation.

Here in rural America, we've watched city folks "discover" what we've always known - there's real value in family, faith, and farming.

They call it homesteading. We call it life.

And what a life it is. To walk out the door, take an unmarked gravel road, and end up at a best friend's porch or the best fishing hole this side of the Mississippi - that's the life for me.

Quite frankly, I kinda hope they never quite figure out how good it is out here.

But we have to protect it. I don't want the government telling me what I can hang over my door to protect my family or what I can put in the back window of my truck.

I don't want the government taxing every cent until there's nothing left to put under the mattress.

I don't want the government telling young girls it's "ok" to live a life they'll one day regret - and take the lives of innocent unborn children to make it convenient.

I don't want schools so distracted by telling boys they're girls and girls they're boys that they forget reading, writing, and arithmetic.

I don't want a nation of borrowers, living beyond our means, with no hope of reaching the American Dream.

And I don't want small businesses strangled by red tape, minimum wage mandates, lawsuit fears, and social-media mobs. If someone's got a problem with a business, they ought to talk to the owner and give them a chance to make it right - not hide behind a keyboard and try to destroy a family's livelihood.

What big-city people love about us in the movies is what they hate in real life. Out here, we love God, we tell the truth, and we love our land. And we will fight for it.

Make no mistake: we are in the fight of our lives. The radical left has our youth right where they want them - confused about God, skeptical of their parents, allergic to hard work, and, maybe the most shocking, they trust the government.

We've got to rein it in now and I mean right now. We've got to read beyond the headlines - not just to skim the news, but to understand what's really going on, so we can argue with the kind of calm clarity Charlie Kirk did. He was armed with facts, grounded in truth, and his steady voice sparked a movement I believe is sweeping across America right now.

I can just picture him and the Lord sitting on stools, grinning down at us.

God bless Charlie for stirring revival. God bless the generations before us who kept the dream alive. And may we honor them by remembering: we are one nation, under God - and by God, we aim to stay free.
